Making Sense Out of Chaos

Wow! It has been a little more than a year since Covid-19 began to wreak havoc amongst Canadians. If I had to choose one word to describe last year, it would be chaos. The impact of this virus on our lives seemed to follow the “chaos theory” - random or unpredictable behaviour occurring in systems governed by deterministic laws.

Associate Agreements - The Associate's Perspective Pt. 1

In volumes 91 and 92 of The Professional Advisory I wrote about associate agreements from the principal's perspective. This article focuses on associate agreements from the associate's perspective... CLICK HERE TO READ MORE

38 Years in Dentistry - An Interview with Dr. Cameron Ellis

For the April edition of our video series, McNulty Minute, we interviewed Dr. Cameron Ellis about his experience of selling his practice and retiring. Dr. Ellis sold his practice in 2017 after 38 years in dentistry... CLICK HERE TO READ MORE

Pandemic Dental Tenancies – What's Going On?

Patient vs Client: On the Psyche and Practitioner

Currently, the healthcare community is divided in regard to identifying our patient population as either patients or clients. Some dental professionals might be dismissive about the distinction and think the term can be used interchangeably... CLICK HERE TO READ MORE

Next Federal Budget: Dentist's Tax Nightmare or Not?

Covid has resulted in many costly and some argue necessary government programs. Pundits suggest the top 1%, including dentists, will end up paying for these programs... CLICK HERE TO READ MORE

One Year later. Where Are Practice Values and Why?

It was like a bad dream. One year ago, our world changed forever. The pandemic raged throughout the world, and resulted in the immediate shutdown of the traditional dental market. The pandemic had more significance for the dental industry as one of the first outbreaks and tragedies was related to the popular Pacific Dental Conference... CLICK HERE TO READ MORE
